NEW ZEALAND ORDERS DECORATIONS and MEDALS

New Zealand introduced a distinctive set of honours in 1975 but retained the British Orders until May 1996. The Order of New Zealand was a non-titular Order and the New Zealand Order of Merit initially granted knighthood. On 10 April 2000, Prime Minister Helen Clark announced that the titles of Sir and Dame in the New Zealand honours system would be discontinued. This lasted just short of 9 years when Prime Minister John Key announced on 08 March 2009 that the knighthoods would be reinstated. Those that received appointments that would have been a knighthood in the past nine years (85 in total) were given the opportunity to accept the title of Knight or Dame. ¹

New Zealand honours are announced on the Queen's Birthday (celebrated in N.Z. on the first Sunday in June) and the New Year Honours list. Prior to 1990 they were announced on New Zealand Day (February 6th).

Effective April 2001, New Zealanders awarded United Nations medals and other medals (such as INTERFET) were allowed to wear the medals on their uniform (see the note on Major Dave Buck, CD later in the New Zealand section).

¹ Queen Elizabeth II, Queen of New Zealand, wearing the New Zealand Orders that she is the Sovereign Head of: The Order of New Zealand, The Order of Merit (star), and the Queen's Service Order.

New Zealand Governor-General The Right Honourable Lieutenant-General Sir Jerry Mateparae, GNZM, QSO, KStJ (left). Former Chief of Defence Staff. It shows his Queen's Service Order around his neck as the Principal Companion, his chain of the Order of Merit with the GNZM star above the Knight of the Order of St. John on his breast and his breast medals begin with the QSO. Interestingly, the Governor General is not a member of the Order of New Zealand. The Right Honourable Sir Snand Satyanan (right), Governor General of New Zealand, wears the Chain of the Order of Merit, the Queen's Service Order neck badge as the Principal Companion of the QSO plus the Order of Merit on his right breast and the New Zealand 1990 Commemorative Medal.

THE ORDER OF NEW ZEALAND (ONZ)

Established on 6 February 1987, the ONZ is the highest level in the New Zealand honours system, and is an exclusive, non-titular Order limited to 20 ordinary members at any one time. The badge of the Order consists of an oval medallion in 9ct gold and coloured enamels, bearing in the centre the design of the shield of the New Zealand Coat of Arms within a Kowhawai rafter patten. This neck badge is worn from a red ochre (kokowai) ribbon with narrow white stripes, 3-mm from each edge. The Order is issued unnamed, but is engraved with a serial number over the hallmark. The insignia is returnable and must be insured by the recipient.²

THE NEW ZEALAND ORDER OF MERIT

Established in 1996, the Order has 5 levels (Current):

Knights/Dames Grand Companions	(GNZM)	Knighthood
Knights and Dames Companions	(KNZM/DNZM)	Knighthood
Companions	(CNZM)	No Knighthood
Officers	(ONZM)	No Knighthood
Members	(MNZM)	No Knighthood

Between 10 April 2000 and 08 March 2009, the two top tiers were re-titled and knighthoods were not given to these levels.

Principal Companions	(PCNZM) replaced GNZM
Distinguished Companions	(DCNZM) replaced KNZM

The government changed this back to the original titles on 08 March 2009 and those who had been appointed PCNZM or DCNZM could change to GNZM and KNZM/DNZM and received knighthoods. The majority did accept the name change and a knighthood but a few Principal and Distinguished Companions continue in New Zealand.

just as the Canadian Governor General is awarded the CD.

⁵ An interesting group showing what a small world it really is (and not only in Disneyland). Major Dave Buck served in the Canadian Forces as an Ordnance Officer and served on the Cambodian Mines Countermeasures operation. When Ben Roth became the commanding officer of 12 (Vancouver) Field Ambulance, of which I was then the Honorary Colonel, I noticed Ben wore the UN SSM and it was for Cambodia. I asked if he knew Dave – Dave had replaced him. They only met once but here they were, worlds apart but with a military connection. Dave was working in Ottawa at a dreaded desk job and the New Zealand military Attaché was talking to him and told him New Zealand needed ordnance officers and off he went – and spent long enough to receive the New Zealand Armed Forces Award (2nd medal). He has since this photo received the New Zealand Service Medal.

THE NEW ZEALAND ARMY LONG SERVICE and GOOD CONDUCT MEDAL

A circular, silver medal, bearing on the obverse the Crowned Effigy of the Sovereign, and on the reverse the inscription 'FOR LONG SERVICE AND GOOD CONDUCT' and shall be attached to an ornamental title bar bearing the words 'NEW ZEALAND' in raised letters. Those eligible for the medal shall be soldiers of the Regular Force of the New Zealand Army, whose character and conduct have been irreproachable and who are recommended by their commanding officer. The qualifying period is 15 years full-time service; a Clasp is awarded for each additional 15 year period. The medal is worn from the left breast suspended from a ribbon, 32-mm in width, of crimson edged white. Officers may receive this medal as long as they have 12 years in the ranks. Services in a Commonwealth Army may be counted as long as that service has not been recognized with a long service award.

THE EFFICIENCY DECORATION (ED) and EFFICIENCY MEDAL

These are still awarded to Reserve Officers (ED), Non-Commissioned Officers and Men of the New Zealand Auxiliary Forces (navy, army and air force). They are identical to the ones described under Canadian Medals except the ED has a bar NEW ZEALAND at the top and the EM has NEW ZEALAND on the scroll mounting bar. Twelve years of service is required for the award.

NEW ZEALAND SERVICE MEDAL

In 2009, the New Zealand government undertook a public consultation on the need for this medal.

The intent of the proposed NZDF Medal would be to recognize the unique requirements of military service. These requirements include:

- commitment to service of the Crown (represented by an oath / affirmation of allegiance),
- liability for operational service subject to military discipline and lifestyle,
- and imposed constraints on employment conditions and personal freedoms.

TERMS

Regular Force (Navy, Army and Air Force) personnel:

Three years of service in the New Zealand military after 3 September 1945, or completion of initial engagement which began after 3 September 1945. The three years can be accumulated and do not need to be continuous.

Note: Service after 3 September 1945 while enlisted in an Expeditionary Force (2NZEAF, J Force or K Force) will be counted as Regular Force service for the purposes of the New Zealand Defence Service Medal. Time served in New Zealand before and after deployment overseas may be counted towards the required qualifying time for the medal (as long as the time served in New Zealand was after 3 September 1945).

Territorial Forces (Navy, Army and Air Force) personnel:

Three years 'efficient' service in the New Zealand Military, or completion of initial engagement, after 3 September 1945. The three years can be accumulated and do not need to be continuous.

Notes

1. E.g. a person who was efficient in Training Years 1 and 2, not efficient in Training Years 3 and 4, and efficient in Training Year 5 would qualify for the medal in Training Year 5. You will need to have been deemed 'efficient' by your unit(s) for a minimum of three separate Training Years to qualify for the medal.

2. Territorial Forces is the legal name (as defined in the Defence Act 1990 and earlier legislation) encompassing the Navy, Army and Air Force part-time service components. The Defence Act 1990 states that "Territorial Forces means the Royal New Zealand Naval Reserve, the Royal New Zealand Naval Volunteer Reserve, the Territorial Force of the New Zealand Army, and the Territorial Air Force collectively."

Compulsory Military Training (CMT) (Navy, Army and Air Force)
Completion of their obligations under the Military Training Act 1949 and Amendments.

For National Service (Navy, Army and Air Force) personnel:
Completion of obligations under the National Military Service Act 1961 and Amendments.

Members of the British Commonwealth Occupation Force who completed 12 months service or their obligations for service in Japan would also qualify. Similarly the 12 months or more of military service in New Zealand or overseas by Second World War personnel still serving on or after 3 September 1946 would qualify these personnel for the award of the New Zealand Defence Service Medal.

Service in categories a. to d. above can be accumulated, if required, to reach a total of three years qualifying service for award of the medal.

In special cases certain shorter periods of service will also qualify for the award when there are deserving circumstances. For example, when a service person:

- 1) Dies while in service;
- 2) Is medically discharged due to a total and permanent disability, before completing three years of service;
- 3) Is medically discharged for any other reason after completion of 12 months service.
- 4) Was discharged through no fault of their own when their service was no longer required as a member of the Armed Forces.

THE NEW ZEALAND 1990 COMMEMORATION MEDAL

Instituted by The Queen by Royal Warrant dated on 9 February 1990. The medal was awarded only during 1990 to 3,632 selected persons in recognition of the contribution they had made to some aspect of New Zealand life, especially the various 1990 celebrations. The medal was struck in bronze-gilt metal.

DESCRIPTION

A circular gilt medal, the Obverse bears the contemporary crowned image of the Queen with the words around the circumference: QUEEN OF NEW ZEALAND ELIZABETH II. The reverse bears the official 1990 symbol, a kotuku, white heron, designed by Fred Graham and Roy Good. The medal was accompanied by a certificate bearing the signatures of The Queen, Governor-General and Prime Minister.

HRH The Duke of Cornwall (Prince Charles) and HRH the Princess Royal (right) wear the Queen's Service Order and the New Zealand 1990 Commemorative Medals. HRH the Duke of York and HRH the Earl of Wessex, both wearing their Colonel Commandant uniforms of the Canadian Forces, wear the New Zealand 1990 Commemorative Medal.
